How Do I Get a Category C+E Licence?

To obtain a Category C+E licence, you must complete an articulated vehicle training programme.

The programme lasts 20 days and combines classroom instruction with practical driving experience. During the course, you will learn not only how to drive vehicle combinations safely and efficiently, but also how to:

- Load and secure cargo correctly
- Plan routes efficiently
- Comply with driving and rest time regulations
- Maintain a safe working environment
- Perform routine vehicle maintenance
- Handle minor operational issues and defects

Many consider the course an advanced transport qualification, but it is best described as a direct extension of your existing truck licence.

What Will I Learn?

Safe and professional operation of articulated vehicles requires both technical knowledge and practical driving skills. At AMU SYD, you will gain both.

During the course, you will complete industry-related tasks and receive practical driving lessons on:

- Public roads
- Motorways
- Urban routes
- A driving skills facility, including slippery road training

You will also learn how to:

- Carry out preventive vehicle maintenance
- Perform inspections according to current safety and working environment regulations
- Identify and resolve minor operational faults

The course concludes with a practical driving test.

We Double Your Driving Competencies

When you complete your Category C+E training at AMU SYD, you will learn to drive both:

- Rigid truck with trailer (drawbar combination)
- Tractor unit with semi-trailer

These are two very different types of vehicle combinations, which means you gain a broader skill set and become a more versatile professional driver.

Choose the Vehicle for Your Driving Test

The course ends with a practical driving test.

At AMU SYD, you can choose whether to take your test in a tractor-trailer combination or in a rigid truck with trailer.

This allows you to take the test in the vehicle you feel most comfortable driving, helping you approach the final assessment with confidence.

Expand Your Career Opportunities

After successfully completing the programme and passing the driving test, you will obtain a Category C+E driving licence.

The licence qualifies you to operate articulated vehicles and heavy vehicle combinations, significantly increasing your employment opportunities within the transport sector. Many employers actively seek drivers with Category C+E qualifications, making this licence a valuable addition to your professional profile.

Take Your Truck and Trailer Licence at AMU SYD

If you do not already hold a Category C truck licence, you must obtain one before upgrading to Category C+E.

If you are unemployed, you may be eligible for support through your unemployment insurance fund or job centre. Contact them to learn more about your options for obtaining a Category C and C+E licence and pursuing a career as a professional truck driver.

Admission Requirements

To enrol in the Category C+E programme, you must:

- Hold a valid Category C truck licence
- Be able to obtain an approved medical certificate

If you are under 21 years of age, you must also hold a valid Driver Certificate of Professional Competence (CPC) in addition to your Category C licence.

If you turn 21 before the day of your driving test, the CPC requirement does not apply.
